

Forced Revival of Federalism

Load shedding (program cuts) is a very likely a part of an end to unsustainable federal fiscal practices. The load shedding may be forced by insufficient revenue, even after some tax increases and asset sales, to fund all existing programs. IOPA aims to help in: a) the setting of funding priorities, hopefully before such decisions must be made with extreme urgency; and b) preparing states to consider which federally-funded state activities to finance with state funds, and which to end.